

Importance of Wearing Masks - Literature Review

- Introduction Paragraph
 - Effective lead in to thesis
 - Strong points of setting an example for patients and protecting others
 - Reword point of protecting yourself to match the parallel structure created in the earlier part of the thesis
- 1st Body Paragraph
 - Use transition to start body paragraph
 - Lackluster evidence of setting example for patient - Either extend the antidote or offer other evidence to support
 - Odd change of tone (“Only you can set the example for others”) - Either reword so the sentence matches the rest of the paper or remove completely
 - Emphasize the statistic used, rather than just using it a passing manner
 - Powerful way to end the paragraph - well done!
- 2nd Body Paragraph
 - Use transition to start body paragraph
 - Good evidence for protecting others with the quote from Fauci
 - Extend analysis for quote - two short sentences are not enough
 - Especially need longer explanation if you are not planning to add more evidence
 - Really could use another use another piece and analysis
- 3rd Body Paragraph
 - Use transition to start body paragraph
 - Best piece of evidence of the paper with the statistic and analysis

- Maintain the same style throughout the entire paragraph - don't keep switching from dashes to commas to set off every appositive
- Concluding Paragraph
 - Short, yet effective
 - Restate your thesis using echo words - do not state it exactly how you did in the first paragraph
- Overall Thoughts
 - Good job for the most part, the majority of your evidence and reasoning supports the claim well
 - Try to maintain the same style and tone throughout the entire paper - We've have pointed out some examples above, but there are several small deviations in style/tone
 - Consider making the changes we've offered above
